

The first fifty years of the International Phycological Society: The Organizing Committee, Executive Councils/Boards of Directors, ad hoc Committees, Editorial offices, International Phycological Congresses

AKSHINTHALA K.S.K. PRASAD†

Department of Biological Science, Florida State University, Tallahassee, FL 32306-4370, USA

This article is based on the current edition of the Board of Directors operating manual [updated and revised by the current International Phycological Society (IPS) Secretary, A. K. S. K. Prasad 2011]. The IPS Executive Council Operations Manual was prepared mainly by the Society Officers of 1998–1999, for first distribution in March 2000. Since then, it was revised and updated by then Society Officers in 2003, 2005, 2009 and 2011. The Manual is intended as a guide for Board members and Officers and is subject to periodic revision and update to incorporate future decisions of the Board and further information based on suggestions from Board members. When the IPS was incorporated as a nonprofit organization in California (on 17 July 2007), the revised Bylaws of the society were adopted by the IPS membership. As per the new Bylaws (Article XVI), the Executive Council was renamed the ‘Board of Directors’ and the council members became ‘ordinary directors’.

International Organizing Committees (apart from the Chairman, and members of Congress Executive Committees and Local Organizing Committees). From 1993 onward, IOC membership also includes persons who serve as Council officers at any point during the lifetime of an IOC (Article 15, ratified late 1992). The numbers in the parentheses refer to the International Phycological Congress.
